

Prof. Jenny Marie

Head of Academic & Learning Enhancement, University of Greenwich

Jenny Marie leads the Academic and Learning Enhancement team at the University of Greenwich, where she works to enhance the quality of education provided across the institution. She has co-developed the university's Student Success sub-strategy, working closely with the DVC and Director of Student Academic Services. She also leads on many aspects of the university's response to external learning and teaching policy and is beginning work on the university's narrative for this year's Teaching Excellence Framework.

Jenny is a professor of Academic Enhancement and Student Partnership, and has particular research interests in student partnership and assessment and feedback. She is currently part of an inter-institutional research project on Inclusive Assessment attributes funded by the Quality Assurance Agency, and has published widely on student partnership, including a guide to scaling up student partnership in collaboration with Lucy Mercer-Mapstone, and a guide to enhancing programmes through student-staff partnership.

Jenny is currently the Chair of University Alliance's PVC Learning and Teaching network. She holds Principal Fellowship of the HEA and a National Teaching Fellowship.
